

ABSTRACT

A rack includes a base section that is securely mounted on the top of a land vehicle and an item-engaging section that is movably mounted on the base section. The item-engaging section moves on rollers between a stored position that is basically congruent with the base section and a deployed position that locates ladders or like items being stored on the vehicle adjacent to the side of the land vehicle.